

A shade-giving shield

Wunderlich covers the cockpit

As much as motorcyclists are thrilled when the superb summer weather arrives, the sunshine landing on the instruments often makes them difficult to read and casts a cloud over riding pleasure. But Wunderlich, the No. 1 worldwide for high-end BMW accessories has a tried-and-tested piece of equipment to prevent this.

For almost every current BMW model, the german company offers an effective cockpit glare shield, which is simply clipped onto the instruments and prevents glare thanks to its sophisticated shape. The shield also significantly improves the rather drab-looking appearance of fittings and protects their plastic from bleaching.

The covers, which are made of black, UV-resistant ABS material, are carefully made for a perfect fit and are reliably and stably held in place even at high speeds due to a clip system. Functional sun visors for the TFT screens of the new BMW models and for almost all common navigation devices are also included in the range from the accessories specialist.

All of the shields are made in Germany and Wunderlich offers a five-year warranty. Prices range between €29.90 and €79.90 depending on the model and the cockpit size.
