Precious Metals Report 2020 - Update: New and relevant information for download

Herisau, 11th May 2020: Precious metal investors are still in the pole position, precious metals have so far come through the corona crisis best of all asset classes. The update of the Precious Metals Report 2020 provides the latest information on demand, price development and investment opportunities for the most important precious metals gold, silver, platinum and palladium.

Raw materials are essential for the development of industry and technology worldwide, which makes them a sought-after commodity. The mining and raw materials experts at Swiss Resource Capital AG regularly produce special reports on the precious metals gold, silver, platinum and palladium, the battery metals lithium, cobalt, nickel and vanadium, as well as on the raw material that is the only one that makes emission-free and at the same time base-loadable power generation possible: uranium.

Currently the update of the Precious Metals Report 2020 is available for free download: <https://www.resource-capital.ch/en/reports/view/precious-metal-report-2020-updates-additional-stocks/>. It contains comprehensive information on the most important precious metals and also clearly shows that for all precious metals under consideration, except gold in 2019, there was a supply deficit, i.e. there was more demand than was available through mining extraction and recycling. Moreover, especially in the case of platinum and palladium, everything stands and falls primarily with the automobile industry and the related electrical revolution in this sector.

The report also provides insightful interviews with exclusively selected experts from the industry. The report is rounded off by the presentation of a number of interesting companies that are suitable for speculation on rising precious metal prices.
