

Press release

CH-Allschwil, 26 March 2013

+++++ New product website: www.robifix.com +++++

The new RobiFix website provides illustrative and detailed information on the concept, applications and technical specifications of the versatile, compact primary circuit connector.

In the automotive industry RobiFix is becoming a new standard for the electrical connection of dresspacks, mainly on welding robots. The advantages are obvious: The compact, extra lightweight connector is user-friendly and easy to maintain, assembly times can be reduced by up to 50 percent.

Multi-Contact has now compiled comprehensive information on RobiFix on a dedicated website. There you can quickly find out more about the RobiFix product range, possible applications and technical data, or contact our automation specialists. Start your discovery tour on www.robifix.com.

