
Claas Belling joins the communications team of Airbus Helicopters Germany

Marignane, 30 April 2014 – Claas Belling (33) has been appointed Head of External Communications at Airbus Helicopters Germany. He succeeds Christoph Mueller, who took over a new position within the company. Claas Belling will manage external communications and media relations of Airbus Helicopters in the German-speaking countries as well as in some international export markets. In his role he will report to Stéphane Chéry, Head of External Communications at Airbus Helicopters.

Since 2008, Belling was responsible for communications in the manned military aircraft business within Airbus Defence and Space. In this regard he led communications actions in several high volume international sales campaigns. Previously, he worked for several years as a regular soldier in the press and public relations work at the German armed forces. Claas Belling has a degree in Journalism and Public Relations.

About Airbus Helicopters

Airbus Helicopters, formerly Eurocopter, is a division of Airbus Group, a global pioneer in aerospace and defense related services. Airbus Helicopters is the world's No. 1 helicopter manufacturer and employs more than 23,000 people worldwide. With 46 percent market share in civil and parapublic sectors, the company's fleet in service includes some 12,000 helicopters operated by more than 3,000 customers in approximately 150 countries. Airbus Helicopters' international presence is marked by its subsidiaries and participations in 21 countries, and its worldwide network of service centers, training facilities, distributors and certified agents. Airbus Helicopters' range of civil and military helicopters is the world's largest; its aircraft account for one third of the worldwide civil and parapublic fleet. The company's chief priority is to ensure the safe operation of its aircraft for the thousands of people who fly more than 3 million hours per year.
